SILVER AND COMMON SENSE.

With all the friends of silver, The Herald believes the time is opportune for a movement in behalf of the government purchase and coinage of the white metal in considerable amount. No good reason is offered for refraining from such coinage, and in the general agreement that the supply of money is inadequate for the business needs of the country lies sufficient argument in behalf of silver.

But such a movement is certain to fail of its purpose, the partial rehabilitation of silver as money, if the proponents of the plan insist on handcaping it with a stipulation that the government shall pay a price that would restore silver to its old ratio with gold.
Such a proposal can only serve to give the enemies of silver coinage on any basis justification for opposing any coinage of the white metal at all. The party in power and nearly all the eastern leaders of both parties would as soon discuss dissolution of the union as silver coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1—so rabid are they on the subject, so unalterably opposed to reopening the question, which they regard as settled for all time.

The question now is, can the purchase of silver by the government in quantity be secured? Free coinage on the old ratio is impossible now, and common sense calls for the elimination of that issue from the discussion if silver coinage is to be achieved in any large measure.

THE CASE OF BURBIDGE.

The Herald regrets exceedingly that its morning "American" contemporary continues its almost peevish attitude toward Captain Burbidge of the police department. There is something that very nearly approaches petulance in its latest outburst. For the first time in his career of eighteen years as a member of the police force, during which period he has risen by merit from patrolman to captain, the charge is made that Burbidge "is either violating the laws or he is incompetent as an executive officer." We hardly believe the people of Salt Lake City, regardless of political affiliations, will indorse that charge.

If Burbidge had not been honest, if he had not been competent, if he had not been a fair and fearless officer of the law, he could hardly have remained so long in the service. Surely one of the many chiefs of police under whom he has served would long since have discharged him. We do not believe that "a handful of fraternalists," as the "American" contemporary designates some of Captain Burbidge's friends in one of the best known secret societies in Salt Lake, could have kept him in his place if he had not been all that The Herald believes him to be.

Members of a secret society, and especially of the splendid organization of which Captain Burbidge is a member, do not support any man, whether he belongs to their order or not, unless they have abundant reason for believing him to be true to any trusts that may be reposed in him. They do, however, and properly so, rally to the support of a fellow member who is assailed unjustly, who is persecuted without cause. This is one of the obligations imposed upon all fraternalists.

The Herald is of the opinion that Chief of Police Pitt acted wisely when he gave Captain Burbidge control of the department. It is our opinion that Captain Burbidge, if he is given half a chance, will measure bountifully up to his opportunity. And he is entitled to his chance. It is greatly to be hoped that Chief Pitt will stand sturdily in the position he has taken, that he will not allow himself to be swayed by unfair and unreasonable attacks upon the man in whom he has reposed so much confidence.

The trouble with Burbidge, and the only trouble that a survey of his long record discloses, is that he has been first, last, and throughout a policeman.
It has never occurred to him that the city paid him a salary for being a politician. His idea has always been that he could not earn his pay unless he attended strictly to his duties as an officer of the law. Burbidge has never been actively identified with any party or any faction. He has never done any work in campaign times for any politicians.

Of course, though, this cannot be the reason he has been so bitterly and so unjustly assailed by our morning "American" contemporary.

A JUST DECISION.

The supreme court of Idaho has just decided that the law passed at the last session of the legislature under which the salaries of district judges were increased, cannot be made to apply to judges who were in office when the law was passed. The court holds that under the constitution the salaries of officeholders cannot be increased or diminished during the term for which they were elected. So the effort of the district judges to violate the constitution has been frustrated.

The Herald commends the Idaho court for its decision. It was eminently proper. There was reason for fearing that the court might decide otherwise, taking the Utah decision as a basis.
Happily, however, the Idaho justices were not influenced by the Utah case.
This notwithstanding the fact that the constitutional provisions respecting salaries are identical in the two states. In Utah the salaries of state officers, thanks to a decision of our supreme court, were increased during the term for which they were elected. Subsequently the salaries of the supreme court and district judges were similarly increased, but no test case was instituted in those instances.

The Idaho court takes the position that if a legislature has the right to increase a salary during the term for which an official is elected it has also the right to decrease his salary, to reduce it to a ridiculously low figure. The framers of the constitution recognized this fact. They saw into what dangerous paths such power might lead. A legislature adverse in politics to state officials might pass, over the veto of the governor, a law cutting salaries to practically nothing. Similarly, a complaisant legislature might pile salaries so high for officeholding favorites that they would become an intolerable burden upon the people.

Besides, as The Herald has pointed out on other occasions, a candidate who is nominated and elected by the people enters into an implied, if not an actual contract with the people to perform specified duties for a specified amount of money. We know of no business men who, after agreeing to pay an employee a certain sum for doing an agreed piece of work, would give him more money for doing that work. And certainly the employee would complain bitterly if given less than the stipulated price. Any court of competent jurisdiction would award him his money if he showed that he performed the service properly.

Colonel Henri Watterson comes out in the Courier-Journal for Bryan. "The practical and sensible thing for Democrats to do now," he says, "is to close ranks and keep step to the drum-beats of destiny which announce the third coming of the man from Nebraska. It is idle further to dispute his leadership.
If he wins, all will be forgiven; if he loses may the Lord have mercy upon him. As to the future, casting never a lingering look behind, the Courier-Journal will do its hornswoggledest." We judge that "hornswoggledest" means something fully as strong as "level best," and while we can't help wishing the colonel had done as much in 1896, we are right glad to give him the right hand of fellowship in any Democratic fight.

Charles Miller, president of a big Standard Oil refinery, says he will not handle gold or silver coins that do not bear the inscription "In God We Trust." He will confine himself to checks, paper money and the old style coins. "This motto lies at the very foundation of our national government," says Miller.
Now what do you think of that, from such a source?

Two hundred years hence the scientists will say all the people of this generation were crazy. And they'll dig up a bunch of our mouldy hypothetical questions to prove it.

Be brave, dear friends. The worst is yet to come. The president's message will be read today. But cheer up, anyway. You may not be compelled to read it.

There is something about the Sixtieth congress that convened yesterday that we can hardly understand. It failed to settle the financial question yesterday.

At the last meeting of the Hospital aid society held for the purpose of straightening out the records from the

SMITH'S CHOSEN PLACE.

(London Opinion.)
A revival meeting was in progress, and Sister Jones was called upon for testimony. Being meek and humble, she said: "I do not feel as though I should stand here and give testimony. I have been a transgressor for a good many years, and have only recently seen the light. I believe that my place is in a dark corner behind the door."

Brother Smith was next called upon for his testimony, and, following the example set by Sister Jones, said: "I, too, have been a sinner for more than forty years, and I do not think it would be fitting for me to stand before this assembly as a model. I think my place is behind the door, in a dark corner, with Sister Jones."

And he wondered why the meeting was convulsed with laughter.
Millions of bottles of Foley's Honey and Tar have been sold without any person ever having experienced any other than beneficial results from its use for coughs, colds and lung troubles. This is because the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package contains no opiates or other harmful drugs. Guard your health by refusing any but the genuine F. J.
Hill Drug Co. The Never Substitutes.

AFRAID OF WATER.

(Judge.)
One thin, pale man in the large bathing suit, standing knee-deep in the water, sighed "Why," we ask, "are you so sad?"
"Alas," he answered, "the sea is the grave of my first wife." Our lips curled superciliously.
"But you are married again," we murmured.
"Yes," said he, "and my second wife won't go near the water."
